Tried to Keep Him from Drink. Early in December last a good deal apseared in the papers here regarding Mr. John F. Swinburne, a young Englishman, whom it was said went from Montreal to vington and thence to Chesterfield ounty near Chester, and succeeded in sighteen months in spending at Covington ad here some $12,000. Mr. Swinburne was in partnership with Mr. Charles M. Drewry in raising chickens in Chesterfield, Drewry in raising chickens in Chesterfield, and there was a vast amount of talk regarding the dissipation at their place. Finally some of Mr. Swinburne's friends and neighbors—among them Mr. C. B. Richardson, of Chester—interested themselves in his behalf and finding the young Englishman at the Commercial Hotel, out of funds and a physical wreck from drink. Mr. Richardson was deputed to take him to New York and send him home.

This Mr. Richardson did, and on his return home a meeting was held in this city of parties interested in Mr. Swinbushe for the putpose of giving to the public through the press an account of what was armed his outrageous treatment. A Dispatch representative was present at this setting, but as it was an experie court the Libers published very little about it.

SOME OF THE CHARGES. In some of the publications made, however, it was charged on the alleged authority of Mr. Swinburne that he was kept systematically drunk by those associated with him and that the whiskey that was given him was drugged. The name of Mr. Brewry was connected with the case in a very unpleasant manner, but was not mentioned in the Disparch save when a suit was properly against him to renot mentioned in the Disparch save when a suit was brought against him to receiver from him the price of a jumper alleged to belong to Swinburne. A Disparch reporter did, however, talk with Mr. Drewry about the matter, and he declined to make any statement except to say that the allegations were false, and to say that the allegations were faise, and be would not even authorize the publication of that. Subsequently the Disparch published on authority that could not be questioned the statement that Mr. Drewry had not only refused to allow Swinburne to have whiskey, but had tried to persunde him to go to a Keeley institute or the Ketreat for the Sick.

HIS SISTER WANTED THE FACTS. The publications referred to mortified greatly Mr. Drewry's family, and as a consequence on the 12th of December Miss Mary Macgil Drewry addressed the following letter to Mr. Swinburne: Covington, Va., December 12, 1892.

My Dear Mr. Swinburne: I enclose you pieces from the paper, the contents of which I do not understand. If they are not so I wish you would write and exonerate Charlie, for they put him mea exonerate Charlie, for they put him meavery false position.

You must remember that my father's besitation was grounded on Charlie being so very young and his inclination to be a little wild; and hearing your weakness he did not consent until he bad your promise that you welld not spree at himeola. If you had forfeited your wor'd of honor you should have informed my father: then all this trouble would not have been; not take a man in your confidence who must be biased in feeling to my brother. Let me say here I cannot think that you were yourself when you to my brother. Let me say here I cannot think that you were yourself when you confided in Mr. Ruchardson. The insinuation I can hardly credit as being anything but false, as you must know it came from one with whom Charlie had had a very serious altercation which ended in blows, though as to the particulars I am not familiar. My parents are not aware that I have written, and, Mr. Swinburne, I ask you in the name of Hun above do not delay in writing me an answer. Charlie has his faults, but I love him. He is very dear to us, and this mortification is more than my parents can bear. Let us have the truth. Most sincerely.

SWINBURKE EXONERATES DREWBY. Miss Drewry has just received the fol-lowing very satisfactory reply to her let-

West View, Ripon Road, Harbogate, Yorkshire, December 27, 1892. Dear Miss Drewry:

Thank you very much for your letter. It Thank you very much for your letter. It is entirely against my wish or orders that any proceedings have been taken against your brother. One thing is certain, that the people who have brought the action will have to pay the expenses out of their own pockets as I will not pay one cent. I am writing to Richardson by this mail to stop all proceedings at once; I only hope and trust my letter may not be too late. The statements made in the papers which I have had sent to me are false and untrue. For instance, they say that when which I have had sent to me are false and untrue. For instance, they say that when I landed in America I went to Montreal. I have never been near Montreal in my life. Then they accuse your brother of having drugged my drink and having kept me drunk the whole time, etc., etc.

Now I will tell you what Charlie has done for me. When he has seen that I have been taking too much he has locked up the whiskey or hidden it from me so that I could not get at it for several days; and if I wanted a drink I had to ask him for it and he only allowed me so much a that I could not get at it for several days; and if I wanted a drink I had to ask him for it and he only allowed me so much a day, as he was afraid that I would make myself ill, as I did once or twice. I am awfully sorry and annoyed about what has happened and I deeply sympathize with your father and mother, it must be an awfull grief to them; I would give anything if I had only known a week or two sooner than I did what was going on and I would have put a stop to it at once, but as it is I ouly heard it a few days ago and so I was unable to do anything. I only hope things have not gone too far. I will stop it at once if I am in time. I may say that while we were on the farm your brother practically did all the work and I did very little.

They say in the papers that I signed a statement in New York before three representatives of the Young Men's Christian Association saying that I was kept drunk the whole time. I never, to my knowledge, signed such a paper. If I did (which I very much doubt) I must have been under the influence of drink; but I am certain I never signed such a paper, as I can always remember what I do when I am in drink. I never lose my head, as your brother will tell you. You seem to think that I authorized Richardson to take proceedings against your brother. I never did; all I did was to give a power of attorney to receive my share of things that remained unsold after our sale—there was a fence that went around our chicken-yard, a few hens, and one or two other things. I told the manager of the Commercial Hotel that he could have my saddle (which was my private property) and also my share in the jumper, but that half mercial Hotel that he could have my sad-dle (which was my private property) and also my share in the jumper, but that half of what it was sold for belonged to your brother. With kind regards, believe me yours Sincerely.

The Thermometer Down to 14 and Falling Still-River Frozen Up.

Another cold-wave struck Richmond full in the face yesterday and froze the city in its firm embrace. On the day before the weather moderated considerably, and the public almost began to believe that there would be a little warmth, but Secretary Dunlop, of the Chamber of Commerce, knew better, for just before midnight he received a telegram announcing that there would be another fall in temperature. The following was the message he received while the public were comfortably enddled up in their beds beneath blankets and bolsters. Hoist cold-wave signal. Temperature will fall about 15 to 20 degrees by 8 A. M. Wednesday.

When business-men went to work yesterday they were greatly surprised to see the piratical-looking flag floating over the Chamber of Commerce, but they pretty soon realized what it meant. Shortly after noon there was a slight fall of snow, and the flaky element made several attempts to get up a storm, but somehow failed.

KEPT GOING DOWN.

And then the temperature began to fall.
Down, down, down it went. The mercury sank from 28 at neon to 18 at 6 o'clock, and then before 11 o'clock it took a jump to 14. To make matters worse a bleak wind whistled over the streets and impudently cut the faces of pedestrians until their features became almost rigid.

The cold just before dark was intense and the ground was as hard as stone. In some places where the pavements were covered with ice walking was exceedingly dangerous and many persons took to the middle of the street. The street-car employees suffered greatly, despite the fact that they were warmly wrapped up.

Many persons visited the lakes at the New Reservoir and Forest-Hill Park for the purpose of skating. The ice at these places was strong and firm but it was rather rough, and the sport was not so enjoyable as it would have been under more favorable circumstances.

The thermometer at 1:30 o'clock this morning registered 11 degrees above zero in front of the Disparce office.

DON'T WASTE WATER.

DON'T WASTE WATER. It is more than essential that citizens should take every precaution to prevent waste of water during the cold weather, as the machinery at the pump-house is greatly impeded by the formation of ice on the wheels. Superintendent Bolling, of the City Water Works, says that if the people are careful he does not apprehend a shortage in the supply, but otherwise there is considerable danger.

THE RIVER FROZEN UP. THE RIVER PROZEN UP.

The cold weather of yesterday will, of course, render the river absolutely useless for navigation, as it was already filled with ice, which will now become firmer and thicker than ever. The stream is trozen over for miles, and ice may be seen floating in the channel even as far down as Hampton Roads.
